

this conference from the stirring, opening address of President McKay to the splendid remarks of Brother Richard L. Evans, just preceding me. I have caught this spirit through the glorious sessions of this conference, receiving reassurance again that this is the Church of Jesus Christ, not the church of any man—a Church which offers to all men a spiritual survival, the opportunity to subdue the earth and overcome all things foreign to enjoying the Spirit of the Lord. The survival kit for spiritual survival is equally as small as the one used for physical survival; let me suggest its size: just four books, the Bible, Book of Mormon, Doctrine and Covenants, and Pearl of Great Price—the small editions even smaller than 9¼ inches by 6 inches by 3½ inches, but what power they contain!

Just before the commencement of this afternoon's meeting I met several brethren from Hawaii, one of whom I had not seen for five and a half years at which time I toured the Hawaiian Mission, Brother William (Bill) Sproat, a faithful dedicated Latter-day Saint, one who truly believes in spiritual survival. I shall always remember being in your home away up there on the peak, the highline that you ride to do your work, the hospitality that you extended to us, the depth of your testimony, the sincerity of your labors to build the kingdom of God, and what you said to me today will always live in my memory: "Oh, this is a dream I never realized would be fulfilled to be here in Salt Lake City attending a general conference." Brother Sproat, one of the many thousand wonderful, dedicated Latter-day Saints who live by the precepts of his spiritual survival kit!

Some of us who live so close to the pattern might not appreciate the design. I saw the beautiful design of spiritual survival at work today as I had the opportunity of embracing you, Brother Bill, and others from those glorious islands of the Pacific.

God bless us that we may survive spiritually; that we may appreciate the necessity of keeping our survival kits complete, tested, and in order constantly, which should include the Lord's word on how to survive contained in the four standard works of the Church, for therein are embodied the way, the truth, and the light of which President J. Reuben Clark, Jr., spoke this morning.

God help us so to do, I humbly pray in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ, our Savior. Amen.

President David O. McKay:

Elder John Longden, Assistant to the Twelve, has just spoken to us. We shall now hear from Elder ElRay L. Christiansen, also Assistant to the Twelve. You need not be in such a hurry, because we cannot get in all of them anyhow.

ELRAY L. CHRISTIANSEN

Assistant to the Council of the Twelve Apostles

I should like to place what I had thought to say in cold storage, even though by the time I take it out it will be too cold to use, and just express my gratitude and appreciation for some things.

I like the song, "Now, Let Us Rejoice." In my opinion we do not rejoice enough in this Church. We have so much for which to be grateful that we could rejoice day and night and still not be sufficiently grateful in our expressions. I am so thankful for what has been taught us in this great conference today and yesterday and the day before. I think it has been outstanding. I thought as I sat here how true it is that we cannot be saved in ignorance of God, in ignorance of our relationship to God—and I thought that as members of this Church we need not be in ignorance, so far as knowledge of our relationship to God is concerned, for surely we are well taught.

There is no prize so great and so valuable as the truth. In the Church we are taught the truth. We are taught the proper way to live—the correct, the right, the happy way to live. We could search the world over, and we could find no better way to live than the right way, and of course the Lord's way is the right way.

We are taught to know the right in all things—how to repent, how to change our ways. We are taught whom and how to serve. We are taught the proper way to enter into the marriage covenant. In fact, the gospel of Jesus Christ is designed to direct us safely through this probationary period, that we "may dwell . . . in a state of never-ending happiness" (Mosiah 2:41) with those we love. I like that statement from the Book of Mormon.

We are taught that in the true sense of the word, God is our Father; that we are his sons and his daughters, and that he loves us, and that he is concerned about our welfare and our fortunes and our misfortunes. He is desirous that when this earth mission is completed that each of us comes home with an honorable release from it to dwell with him in a state of happiness and usefulness.

I am not so interested in heaven unless I may continue my association with those I love, and that is all of you, my brothers and sisters, but especially my companion, my children, my grandchildren, and my progenitors.

I am grateful to belong to a Church that teaches that the relationship between the husband and the wife, between the father and the mother, and between the children and the parents, is intended to be and is eternal in its nature, if we will just prepare for that type of relationship. No principle, doctrine, or practice is so distinctive or so appealing to the human reason as is the perpetuity of the family. The more I think about the gospel the more I see that it revolves about the family and its eternal association.

When I went home at noon, I picked up a letter from a boy written in his own handwriting. He is eleven years old.

(As you know, in the temple the opportunity is given to place names of those who are ill or afflicted on a roll where they are remembered in our prayers.) The letter reads:

"Dear Temple Worker: Will you please enter my dad's name on the prayer roll because we want him to become a member of the Church and take Mom and us kids to the temple. We sincerely hope and pray that our Heavenly Father will help him to keep the Word of Wisdom. His name is _____ Sincerely your brother, _____, 11 years old."

That tells the story of what is in the heart of a boy who loves his parents, who loves them enough to desire their association beyond this earth life. Sometimes the children must lead the parents on the way.

I am grateful that my Father in heaven is a patient Father. If he will stay with me, I am determined to stay with him, to stay with that which is true to the end of my days.

God bless us, brothers and sisters, that we may rejoice; that we may receive thankfully; that we may live worthy of the bounteous blessings that God extends to us, that we will share with our nonmember friends the truth as it has been revealed; and that we may bear testimony, not alone in words, but in deeds and in action and in doing good to others, I pray humbly in the name of Jesus Christ. Amen.

PRESIDENT DAVID O. MCKAY

We must take time before the closing song and benediction to express a word of appreciation to those who have contributed to the success and comfort of those who have attended this great conference. I wish first to mention the officers of this city who have watched with care the number of automobiles and their occupants and guided so successfully the hundreds of cars and taken care of the thousands of people who have surrounded the block and driven to and fro. You have noticed them on every corner—their courtesy, their attention, their protecting and guiding care, and in your behalf, in behalf of the General Authorities particularly, I express thanks to the city government, and to the police who have protected your interests so carefully and so ably.

To the General Authorities we express deep appreciation for the inspira-
